

THE LEADERSHIP RECIPE
CREATING GREAT LEADERS

So, You Wanna Be a Manager!

Transitioning into a management role is one of the most pivotal decisions in any professional's career. But how do you know if management is truly the right path for you? So, You Wanna Be a Manager! is an insightful, interactive course designed to help individuals explore the realities of management, assess their readiness, and make an informed decision about this significant career move.

Through engaging discussions, practical exercises, and real-world examples, this course dives deep into what it truly means to manage and lead others. Participants will gain clarity on the unique challenges and rewards of management, from fostering team dynamics and handling tough conversations to balancing strategic thinking with tactical execution.

Key Takeaways:

- Understand the Role: Explore the responsibilities, emotional weight, and skills required to excel as a manager.
- Self-Assessment: Evaluate your strengths, motivations, and readiness for a management role.
- Build Awareness: Uncover common misconceptions about management and align your career goals with your aspirations.
- Action Plan: Leave with a clear decision framework for making one of the most important decisions of your life.

Whether you're considering a leap into management or simply want to better understand its dynamics, this course provides the guidance and tools you need to make a confident, informed choice.

joanne@theleadershiprecipe.com
Email us for more information.

www.theleadershiprecipe.com